Bismillah-in Reekuman in Raheem

As Salam Alaikum

Dearest Malika,

Hoping your health is good and your spirit clean, as for me i am well. These last few months have been hectic, we got busted again trying for freedom but now things are better and we are preparing for another try. The time spent here has not been fruitless in terms of understanding what went wrong or is wrong. The problem is rigidity, it doesn't abide by principle or has a moral foundation, it takes after it's parent white society.

I use to tell you of being about my father's work but i was ill equipped to do it without the knowledge i've gained, so, Al-hum-dullah. Allah, made me sensitive to the pain of other's, yet made me a man willing to listen and understand, He makes me understand the pain i felt as well yet not willing to submit to it, all the things other men experience i also had to experience that i would no how to deal with it and help other's. One has to learn to except people with their faults or try to help them get over them, that is love; love is in understanding and forgiving, it is being patient, it is to be kind when there is only deceit and hatred arounded you, love is to believe that within the hearts of mankind is a quality that no amount of troubles can bring down and keep him marching forward. Our struggle is not just for political gains but also to free and elevate man's spirit for unless you do that everything else is meaningless. For each setback is a lesson for growth but not many realize that it also gives one the opportunity to know themselves and other's, without difficulties that which lies within the creative spirit would never come forth, Allah speaks clear when your mind is free from the petty things of this world.

In a letter you said, you didn't think it fair to the warrior's leaving them and struggling for other's, when no one would even help them, then you said they (the warriors) had forgotten things you had taught them and fought with each other, so it is with the people, they are like children separated from their mother & father who teach's them and loves them, they fight with each other, but each other and set a foot. No loving parent turns his or her back on a child but seeks to help them find the true way. Our people's position is very dangerous and they need guidance, would you walk away from them, is human love that fragile or does it express itself fully. I love you even though you are bitter and wonder why i said certain things, because i do not understand you at times does not change by love, i love the people and my duty lies in helping them, difficulties can be overcome, obstacles can be surmounted if one has patience and faith, while being consistent in practice.

In my struggle to understand and find truth i have always tried to share it with you, it's all i can offer you or anyone else, once i told you security was in the individual. You can give the children a home, feed them, they can have clothes and toys, a home yet if you teach them these ways they will never have security.

Listen to the things Ford & Sarobe are saying, check out what is happening around the country. "H" told me six blacks have been murdered in San Quentin and things are bad.

People have asked me to write them a program with some direction which i did and also have wrote some articles.

Don't let the things that happen between us turn you away from the struggle or the truths i give you but seek always to help our people and love them for they are in need of it. Educate them, understand their historical experiences, teach them moral discipline and learn to build up faith in them and yourself. This is the work all our trials and tribulations have prepared us for. I will be about my Father's work, my sincere love to the children.

You were right, i am a dreamer but i believe it was more a vision than a dream.

Peace Always
Nub
